Quality Supported Employment

The best way to learn about working is for a person to find a real job and get the needed support to make it succeed.

Supported Employment provides on-going services to assist each individual, regardless of how severe his or her disability. Our staff is trained to help a person become employed in the community.

Employees with all kinds of disabilities have proven to be valuable workers. An individualized job is a real job that matches a person's interest and skills.

Supported Employment

- Enables individuals with disabilities to become productive, long term employees.
- Individuals with disabilities are matched with jobs.
- Ensure that goals of the position are met.
- Economics benefits to employers.
- Expanded workforce, reduced turnover.
- Savings in recruitment and training.

How Supported Employment Works

Supported Employment is the key to success for many people with all kinds of disabilities. People with mental retardation, traumatic brain injuries, physical disabilities, learning disabilities, deafness, blindness, autism, and mental illness have the ability to be productive with guidance from one of our trained supported staff.
